KINK AND BDSM ACTIVITY CHECKLIST

Kink and BDSM activity checklists are especially useful tool to use when exploring a new - or renewed - relationship. Print this form and fill it out with complete honesty in as much detail as you can. Each individual in the relationship should fill out a separate copy without seeking input from their prospective playmate(s).

When complete, share it with your partner(s) and discuss. It can be fun to date the checklist and set it aside, as some of your hard limits may well become your favorites as time goes by.

At the end of the checklist you'll find some open-ended questions that are important to discuss when negotiating. Of course, if anything is not relevant you can leave it blank.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

IMPACT PLAY STRIKE ZONES

During BDSM impact play it is important to be careful with or avoid certain areas of the bottom's body. These images show strike zones as green, yellow, and red areas. Green zones have ample fat and muscle and are almost always safe. Yellow zones are safe with care, especially if the bottom is muscular in that part of their body. Red zones are to be avoided altogether.

Referring to the images above, describe the areas of the body where impact play is OK.

Medical issues, if any, that your partner(s) should be aware of.

Is it OK to leave bruises and/or marks? If so, where?

What are your safewords? Do you have a non-verbal cue?

How much sexuality do you want to incorporate into the scene, if any?

What are your needs for aftercare, if any?

Do you have any triggers?
